"I DON'T CARE!"

"I don't care! I'd just as lief die!" How frequently we hear this expression, coming from people who are sick of this world's struggle. And yet it is the universal rule among men that no one is willing to go until his time comes. After all there is the eternal hope that things may get better. "The great leap in the dark" has its terrors even for the bravest hearts. Suicide, at best, is but a coward's trick, to which strong men and women never resort.

And then, too, what profit can there possibly be in jumping from the frying pan into the fire? We can only live once, and while we live let us live. This world may not be our everlasting dwelling place, but it is possible that the Great Hereafter may have terrors and torments in store for us, which will make our hardest trials on earth pale into insignificance.

What, Good Brother, if you are "hen-pecked"—it may be Heaven compared to the prickings of a tormented conscience! What if your child dies—your well-beloved One, on whom you had set such store—and hoped great things—think of the perils and dangers he is escaping at the hands of a cruel world! What if you lose your money—think a kind Providence that you have your health and strength left, with which you may be enabled to hew out another fortune. "Never despair" is a good motto for the physical and mental "down-and-outs."

If you don't know what else to do to drive away your attack of mental indigestion—why go to the Moving Pictures—take a run down to little old New York—anything, anywhere, anyway, to get into a new frame of mind.

Read cheerful books. Scan the wholesome magazines and clean newspapers, and "Bless the Lord that you're living!"

AMENITIES (?)

We were surprised to note that neither one of our esteemed down-and-across-the-avenue contemporaries had a line on the recent successful Bermuda contest conducted by the people's paper. Can it be that the Green-Eyed Monster is responsible for this oversight? Even the proprietor of that newsy and readable journal, THE HAWLEY TIMES took special pains to make extended comment on the outcome of the affair. Again, we ask, in the name of the "amenities and ethics of the Fourth Estate"—concerning which these aforesaid contemporaries write and speak so glibly, why this seeming oversight? You "shorely" aren't jealous, are you?

SCRANTON ENTERPRISE.

Our esteemed Scranton contemporary, THE TRIBUNE-REPUBLICAN has inaugurated a $12,000 contest with a view to bringing the circulation of their paper up to the 30,000 mark. The proprietors of this wide-awake paper are giving their subscribers a journal that is newsy and breezy, and that is really worth while.

"BETWEEN OURSELVES."

An unusually large number of good "news" stories have been crowded out of this issue, which will appear in Friday's edition. By the way, although we have said very little about our recent tremendous increase in circulation, advertisers are becoming aware of the fact, that THE CITIZEN is reaching the class of people, who are willing and able to buy the wares which they offer for sale. Better see the advertising manager, before any possible increase in the rates is announced.

MISINFORMATION.

When our esteemed down-the-avenue contemporary, THE WAYNE COUNTY HERALD, speaks of a "barbecue" at a certain meeting on a certain night, he speaks of something of which he knows next to nothing. If he wishes more accurate information, as to what transpired at the aforesaid meeting, on the aforesaid night, he may call at THE CITIZEN office, and he will be furnished with a correct account of what actually took place. By the way, we see he persists in permitting the Hon. John Kuhbach, to be classified in his news columns, as "Burgess" instead of as "Mayor," which latter title belongs to him.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS MEET.

The county temperance institute of Wayne County under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League in the Court House, is in session to-day (Tuesday). We predict that a large audience will greet the Rev. Father J. J. Curran, Wilkes-Barre, who speaks to-night (Tuesday) at 8 p. m. His address will be worth hearing.

PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Love In A Cottage?

Editor of CITIZEN:
Last week's issue of THE WAYNE INDEPENDENT contained an article contributed by "Jane Grey" in which she made the statement that money was not altogether needed to promote a successful business nor to make for happiness. Now, if you will permit me, I would like to ask "Jane" to please tell in a plainer and more definite way how humanity can exist without the needful shilling and six-pence and just what her idea of happiness is? For surely if we can live without money and at the same time be happy, why all this exertion and struggling?

"JACK GRIM."

Death of Floyd Felter.

Floyd Felter, who was burned by gasoline in a Middletown garage on Monday, died Thursday after suffering agonies for three days. He was 31 years old and was born in Equinunk, Pa.

A fashion note says that the most of the trimming of women's hats will be on the back this year. This is probably done to neutralize the vertigo tendencies of the hobble skirt.

We can never understand why custom has decreed that reports of chess matches should be considered as sporting news.

Are You Deaf?

Catarrah is Probably the Cause—Get Rid of the Cause.

If you have catarrh and hear constant ringing noises in your ears look into the matter at once.

It's a pretty sure sign that catarrh is spreading and is making its way through the Eustachian tubes that lead from the nose to the ears.

When catarrh gets to the ears partial deafness follows. If you have ringing noises in your ears go to G. W. Pell to-day and get a HY-OMEI outfit and drive out catarrh.

To cure catarrh HY-OMEI should be breathed through a pocket inhaler for a few minutes, four or five times a day. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler and breathe it.

It kills the germs; soothes the irritation; heals the inflammation; stops hawking, spitting and snuffling.

HY-OMEI keeps the throat free from mucus and prevents crusts in nose.

The complete HY-OMEI outfit which includes the little indestructible hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of HY-OMEI and simple instructions for use, costs $1.00. Separate bottles of HY-OMEI cost 50 cents at druggists everywhere, or at G. W. Pell's drug store on money back plan.

and a member of a number of fraternal organizations including the F. & A. M. His widow, who was a Miss Lucy J. Fitch, and was born in Honesdale in 1855, together with their three children, Florence, Ray and Ralph, survive to mourn his loss. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence, Rev. W. H. Swift, D. D., officiating.

Death Of Leonard Torpyn.

Leonard Torpyn, a veteran of the Civil war, died at his home on Seventh street, about 9 o'clock Thursday night, aged sixty-eight years, lacking one day. Mr. Torpyn was taken with a paralytic stroke Tuesday evening, February 1, 1843. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted as a private in Company H, Fifty-second regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, from Nov. 4, 1861, to July 12, 1865, and served with distinction until the end of the conflict. For more than twenty years he resided in Seelyville, removing to Honesdale five years ago, where he was employed in F. G. Rickard's livery. He is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Alvina Thomas; two daughters, Mary, wife of Frank Molter, of Seelyville; Effie, wife of DeWitt Smith, Cherry Ridge; one son, Charles Edward, Honesdale, and by seven grandchildren. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Central Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. William H. Miller, the pastor, officiating. The pallbearers were: Bert Dain, George C. Blake, John Tigner, Louis Jett, Charles Cook, Henry Parish.

GREELEY CENTENARY

language and the finest diction.

"But Time, Time that impartial Judge, has added something greater than ever before. Horace Greeley had been endowed most bountifully by His Creator with faith, vision, courage, love. On those great pillars, the character, life and worth of Horace Greeley is founded.

"What must have been his feelings as he left his native town of Amherst to seek that beautiful college which has turned out some of the greatest men America ever knew? But another life opened to him. No theoretical knowledge must be obtained. It must be a practical knowledge. It must be working with workmen. He must go among his fellow workmen. He must kneel at the feet of Daniel Webster and Henry Clay, that his life may be inspired by a love for the Union, and with the value of protection.

"He must enter into the political life. He must meet politicians and statesmen. He must meet 'the bosses, for they had political bosses then as now. From that great combination of circumstances, this life of Horace Greeley must be moulded and shaped for his great fate."

"Now he edited the 'Log Cabin.' Greeley became acquainted with men, methods and manners.

"There is no place in this wide universe that he would be more pleased to have his name mentioned than in Wayne, Susquehanna and Bradford counties."

Mr. Dimmick then described the famous meeting in Horace Greeley's New York Tribune office, when William Brosh, of Pike county, who had gone to Chicago and there started the 'Chicago Tribune,' David Wilmot, of 'Wilmot Proviso' fame, and Calusha A. Grow, author of the 'Homestead Act,' and Samuel E. Dimmick, delegate from Wayne, men famous in Northeastern Pennsylvania's history, foregathered and determined upon the nomination of Lincoln.

"Horace Greeley," continued Mr. Dimmick, "had a grand view of life that was irresistible. He tried to make the country better here, and better there."

When Mr. Dimmick related the incident of Mr. Greeley's laying his hand on the brow of Lincoln, as he lay in his casket, and there repeated the Lord's Prayer, and when he concluded his address with a description of the death-bed scene of the great editor, the silence was so great it could be felt.

"As he was lying on his last couch," concluded Mr. Dimmick, "with his two daughters by his side, his beloved rector, Dr. Channing at his feet, Mr. Greeley said: 'Farewell, dear daughters, farewell, dear pastor. Tell my countrymen that I know that my Redeemer liveth.' And thus passed away the great, the grand, the noble Horace Greeley."

The High School chorus consisted of the following young men: Joe Jacobs, De Roy Kreitner, C. Bullock, Vincent Carroll, Ray Dibble, Sumner Crossley, Leon Hagaman.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
